

VIRGINIA LAWYERS WEEKLY

Vol. 23, No. 12

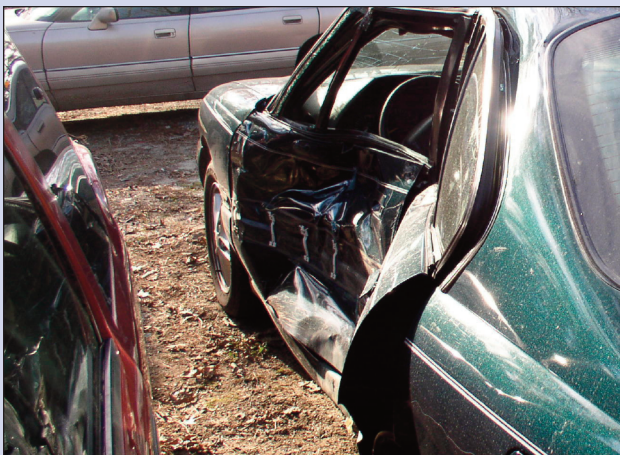

August 25, 2008

www.valawyersweekly.com

Dump truck T-bones car, damages driver's shoulder

$260,000 Settlement

On Dec. 17, 2005, the plaintiff was the operator of a motor vehicle that was struck on U.S. 360 by a dump truck that failed to yield the right of a way at the intersection with Route 642. The plaintiff sustained a hard impact to the left side of her vehicle, with significant invasion into the driver's compartment.

Plaintiff required surgery on her shoulder in February 2008. Plaintiff's expert related the injuries to the accident and rated the plaintiff with a 10 percent disability of her upper extremity and shoulder, which would require continuing medical treatment.

The defense requested an exam by Dr. Howard Stern, who agreed with the plaintiff's treating physician that the shoulder injury was in fact related to the accident in question and that the plaintiff would require future medical treatment.

[08-T-138]

TRONFELD

Type of Accident: Automobile

Type of Injuries: Connective tissue, six fractured ribs, left shoulder impingement with acromioclavicular joint separation

Name of Case: Deborah Epps v. Herbert Henley

Court: Amelia County Circuit Court

Mediator: Robert O'Hara

Special Damages: $66,076.23

Verdict or Settlement: Settlement

Amount: $260,000

Plaintiff's Attorney: Jay Tronfeld, Richmond

Insurance Carrier: Progressive